Hi, I'm a 17 year old guy and i was just wondering what the average penis size is for a guy of my age? Its just that the -honest- size of my penis is 21cm or just over 8inches, long and 5.5inches wide. Is this normal per-se? Also will this affect sex because of my size. How would you define a penis that is 'hung' in terms of size/length? Am i just a lucky guy Yours, Ben Dover

Hey. My friend called me and said that she's afraid she's pregnant but the shocking thing is that she's pregnant and the only thing she's done was with her little brother. Could you help me out with answering her? She's freaked out because she can never tell her mother that she did it with her son. She's having feelings that she's pregnant. Please get back to me when you can.

He makes me feel guilty about it and now I'm not sure if I'm totally normal like other girls.

Dear Ann, Iam finding it very difficult to place a condom on my penis; every time I attempt it, my foreskin (I'm obviously un-circumsized) gets in the way, and 'jams it' therefore, I have start all over again. What worries me most of all, when I do become sexually active (probably before the end of they ear) I am worried I will 'kill' the arousal and majic of my partner and I, by not being able to put this condom on. Do you have any suggestions? Or even just any old idea would be most helpful. Thank you so very much!

i am 16 years old and have recently had sex with my boyfriend of 6 months. everything is going great but last week i noticed i had 'come on' again, after only two weeks of my period ending. this, i am told, is normal for settling hormones, however, my mum, who is a health visitor, told me this is called BREAKTHROUGH BLEEDING and occurs in the early stages of pregnancy. since having sex, i have had a normal period and have felt no pain whatsoever. do you think there is a chance i could be pregnant? my plan of action is to wait to see if my next period can dictate the answer, then buy a home pregnancy test. Please help, no web site can give me the answers i need. thanks, miss x

Hi. I'll let you know right away that I have mild paranoia as I can turn very little situations into something very drastic with my imagination. I don't know if Im exaggaretating in this case, but I'm worried a lot. I noticed that I have a small bump in the top-left area just abover my clitoris. It's been there for awhile, but it gets really small and sometimes disappears and then gets a bit bigger. Im not too sure if its mostly around my period, but I think it is. (By the way I just ended my period yesterday and that's when I noticed that it was a bit bigger). I've never had sex with a guy or anything. THE one thing that keeps coming to my mind and worrying me is that I might have cancer. DO you think I have cancer? My mom made an appointment for me for next Monday, and I'm worried about what the results will be. I definately don't want to find out that I have cancer. I've started crying numerous times since I noticed it got just a little bigger because I'm worried that I have a terminal illness. Please help !

hello doctor ann. during my third year at school i was persistently bullied by a few lads in my class. i have always been afraid to retaliate because i am afraid the bullying will become more intense or i may have problems with the school. i have repeatedly informed my teacher about these troubles and they have dealt with the matter through use of suspension on the bullies part. however when they return to school they just persist in making my life a living hell. i have informed my parents of this and they have informed the school on numerous occasions of this. I believe the ringleader of the bullies has a mental disorder of some description which in turn gives him invincibility in terms of expulsion from the school. i do not know what to do about this, i am also worried that the bully is not acting for himself and is just being controled by his illness. please help.

Hello doctor. I would like to ask you about a pain I feel in the lowest part of my belly. It's been a month since I feel it, it's not a strong pain, but when I relax and have nothing to do it annoys me. My periods are OK and I'm a virgin, so what can be the problem?
Thank you for the answer.
